

PAPER MACHE

sculpture, one to one.

A four-session block where your child builds one sculpture from scratch — designed, built, painted and finished — working directly alongside a practising artist.

Why four sessions?

Paper mache has to dry fully between layers — it cannot be rushed into a single afternoon. The piece dries safely in the studio between visits, so every session is hands-on making.

THE PROCESS

- 01 Design & armature
We start with the idea — a creature, a character, something from imagination. Then we build the skeleton underneath it from wire, cardboard and foil. This is the part that decides whether the finished piece has real posture and life to it.
- 02 Layering
The paper mache goes on in overlapping layers, working around the form. Messy, satisfying, and the session where the sculpture stops being an idea and starts being an object. It then dries in the studio between visits.
- 03 Shaping & detail
Once dry, we sand it smooth and add the fine detail — teeth, scales, eyes, texture — using paper clay. Then a coat of primer so the colour will sit properly on the surface.
- 04 Paint & seal
Colour, layering and highlights, taught the way Kindness paints her own work. Finished with a protective seal so it lasts. The sculpture goes home the same day.

WHAT'S INCLUDED

- All materials — wire, paper, paste, paper clay, primer, paint and sealant
- Use of Kindness's studio tools and workspace
- Safe drying and storage of the piece between sessions
- One completed, sealed sculpture to take home
- Aprons provided (though old clothes are still wise)

THE DETAILS

AGES	8 and up
SESSION LENGTH	75 minutes
BLOCK	4 sessions, usually weekly
GROUP SIZE	One to one
WHERE	Kindness's studio, Bay Area
INVESTMENT	$299 for the block

GOOD TO KNOW

Before the first session

We'll chat about what your child wants to make so Kindness can prepare. A drawing or photo of the idea helps enormously.

Parents

You're welcome to stay, or to drop off and collect — whichever suits your child. The studio is set up so there's a comfortable place to wait.

Rescheduling

Give 48 hours notice and we'll move the session at no cost. Because the piece dries between visits, sessions stay roughly a week apart.
